Schley's Rescue of Lieut. Greely. In 1871, while a lieutenant commander on the United States ship Benicia, on the Asiatic station, Commodore W. S. Schley took part in an attack on the forces defending the fort on the Salee river, in Corea, "wherein the Coreans were taught a lesson in regard to the power of the United States that they have not forgotten. Schley's services in rescuing the survivors of Greely's Arctic expedition in 1884 are a matter of history. He was chosen for the work because his fearlessness, selfpossession and determination were recognized as just the qualities required for the emergency. He left his desk in the department at Washington on a day's notice, set out with the expedition, sailed straight to the Polar regions and arrived at Cape Sabine in the nick of time. Had he tarried 24 hours on the way, he would have been too late, for Lieut. Greely and his six companions were at the point of death from starvation and cold. He was in command of the Baltimore in the harbor of Valparaiso in October, 1891, when the sailors of his ship were set on by a Chilian mob ashore; one Yankee bluejacket was killed, and five others were badly hurt. Throughout the trying times which followed, Schley carried himself with a dignity and courage that commanded the admiration of the country."-McClure's

Grand Excursion to the Beaumont Oil Fields and Sprrounding Territory. $15.00 for the Round Trip.

On Feb. 19th, 1901, the Kansas City Southern Ry., known as the Port Arthur Route, will make the very low rate of $15.00 for the round trip from stations on their line in Kansas and Missouri to Beaumont, Lake Charles, Port Arthur, Houston, Galveston and San Antonio, in order to meet the constant demand of investors and ex-cursionists attracted by the wonderful oil gusiner to Beaumont and surrounding ter-ritory. It is the intention of this Company to make of this excursion the banner excursion of the year, both in point of number of excursionists and attention given to secure the comfort of each one attending. Tickets will be limited to March 12th, 1901, thus affording an elegant opportunity to visit the wonderful Southland and investigate its world famed resources. Any inquiry rela-tive to excursion will be cheerfully attended to, and we invite such inquiries. S. G. Warner, G. P. & T. A., Kansas City, Mo.; J. H. Morris, H. D. Dutton, Trav. Pass. Agts.,

Six Million a Year.

Did you ever stop to consider what a million means? Multiply this six times and it shows you how popular Cascarets are and what great merit they possess. For, last year over six million boxes of this wonderful medicine for liver and bowels were sold in this country alone. The American people know a good thing. The sales of Cascarets prove it. The medicine is the best for the bowels, the price right, 10c, 25c and 50c a box, and a 50c box is a whole month's treatment for the worst kind of a case. It is a pleasure to advertise a medicine like this as well as to endorse the makers and ask readers to how it. readers to buy it.

HIGHWAYS IN FRANCE.

Their Maintenance Is Reduced to a System Which Is Worthy of Praise and Emulation.

Nations which possess vast territories and which are in the habit of indertaking vast enterprises are apt to overlook details. And yet, when we stop to think, the perfection of anything and everything lies in the scrupulous attention that is to be given to details. Instruments of precision only differ with ordinary instruments in care given to details, to small perfections. An invention which is a success is the one in contriving which the inventor has given the most time to smallest particulars. The French have applied that principle to the administration of the maintenance of roads. The greatest attention has been paid to the smallest thing that contributes to the simple mending of a rut. The cantonnier who does the work is one of an administration that includes and employs the most skillful scientists and engineers in the world. The simple stone that he lays to help mend the rut has perhaps occupied 100 minds before it is put in its place. "Useless trouble," you may say. Not

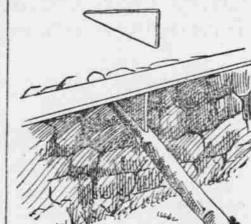

The object in the maintenance of roads is to have them all kept in such a state that carriages will roll upon them in the best conditions. A Plan for Topping a Wall Which Gives the Animals No Chance to Gain a Footbold.

Sheep will go over a stone wall with the greatest ease. A top pole exactly over the center of the wall is not proof against their nimble feet, for it allows the sheep to place their feet on the top stones, making a jump possible. A single board, placed as shown in the cut, will retain sheep, provided the wall is not too low, since it projects into the pasture, and so gives the sheep no chance to gain a foothold upon the top of the wall. The board is shown in a perfectly horizontal position. It can be raised at an angle, if desired, by changing the shape of the bit of board that is nailed to the stake. If the land on both sides of the wall is owned by the same person, the stakes can be driven on the other side of the wall, the top end projecting over the pasture side of the wall, and the board nailed directly to the stake, without any bit of board beneath it .- N. Give Your Farm a Name.

We name farm animals as a matter of convenience. So should we name change. Some die, more sell out and move away. It is hard to identify farms by the names of their owners standings and mistakes would be avoided, vexation would be escaped, if farms could be identified by permanent names-names that belonged to them and not to their owners. If farms were named, it would be easy to give a preciseness to legal documents, advertisements, directions Country Gentleman.

Horses Have Long Memories, That horses remember their racing days is evidenced by the performance of Rachel B., 2:281/2, by Allie West, at the Meadowlands farm one day last fall. It was expected that the old mare would cross the track to the tract of clover in the infield, but instead she went to the sand, took the out- pending on stores and hucksters for its side of the track and jogged around it three times, and then, turning above the wire, took the pole and went around. FARMING A BUSINESS.

nyone Who Conducts Rural Work on a Different Basis Is Sure to Make It a Fallure.

Farming is a trade that takes longer to learn than any other. How many times one hears the question asked about some stranger: "What is his ply will be: "No, just a farmer," as much as to say, anybody can plow and plant and sow and reap. And almost anyone can to a certain extent. But quite often the most common work of the farmer is done in a way that causes almost total loss of his time, his team, and perhaps other help, all because he knew no better way in which to do it. Perhaps he may get moderate returns for his labor in some particular case, and not be aware that it is not the best that could have been obtained, if his work had been systematic and thorough. In a great many instances the returns would have been one-half or one-fourth greater. I remember, when I was quite young, asking different tradesmen how long it took them to learn their trade. The answer would range from one to five years. If the same length of time were devoted to the study of farming, we should have more proficient farmers. There are those who have lived and worked on a farm all their lives and yet at the age of 30 or 40 they do not know how to farm so as to obtain remunerative results. There is no place where it pays better to have things done at the proper time than on the farm. The failure of the crops, the unfertility of the soil, the condition of the stock and an almost endless number of leaks of knowledge of the farmer. He has not learned the trade of farming. Consequently a portion of his labor and expenditure are thrown away .- George A. Rose, in Prairie Farmer.

OLD PEACH TREES.

Ulinois Fruit Grower, Who Has Had Lots of Experience, Advises a "Dehorning" Process.

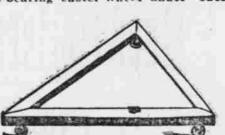

If any reader has any peach trees that are old and on the decline, or any seedlings bearing poor fruit, dehorn them, cutting the tops all off to short stubs, the outside limbs a little shorter than the others; that will insure a nice pyramidal top when the branches or new top starts next spring. If the tree bore good fruit in its younger days, the fruit will be as good as ever on this new wood. If the fruit was of no value you can have a fine lot of nice, new wood upon which to bud, that will be ready in due time. It is no use to keep your old scraggy trees and poor fruit when it is so easy to have the best; besides, you can make beautiful low-headed trees out of the old unsightly trees. By using a little judgment you can soon learn to do the work well. A sharp saw and plenty of grafting wax to cover the stubs to keep out the water is all the outfit you need. Red paint will do in place of the wax, but it will take two applications to do the work right. You can have a beautiful lot of low-headed trees out of the old ones-trees that you will be proud of, and fruit that will sell on any market. Don't be afraid. Head them low. If you have to cut limbs that seem large, no matter. I dehorned some a short time ago and cut limbs four inches. Plenty of wax will save them. Heretofore I have done the work in February, which perhaps is the better time. As to budding, nearly everyone can do that, as the process has been published many times. Try it; it will pay you well .- J. W. C. Gray, in Farmer's Voice.

You cannot look your best unless you feel your best-that is, unless you feel well, strong, vigorous, with pure blood, strong and steady nerves. If you have no appetite, poor digestion, are bilious and constipated, your skin will be dark, sallow, pimply, with unhealthy pallor.

If you are sleepless, nervous, irritable, despondent, with nerves all on edge, feel as if you could fly, and are startled at every sound,—these nervous troubles will certainly line your face with wrinkles like age, make you look haggard, hollow-eyed, take the lustre from your eyes and the elastic spring from your step.
